

Sheila A. CLOYD

PROJECT DIRECTOR • FACILITATOR

Prepared • Professional • Authentic • Fun – all words used to describe Sheila Cloyd from hundreds of facilitations. One could easily add Compassionate, Committed and Passionate in her goal to bring the education of The Pacific Institute to those of low socio-economic means.

Sheila's in-depth knowledge of The Pacific Institute's concepts enables her to work effectively with a wide variety of organizations, from Head Start and various states' Departments of Labor, Health & Human Services, Corrections and Juvenile Justice to public schools and faith-based organizations. Employing the knowledge gained from working with social service agencies, Sheila served as content consultant for the Institute's new corrections program, New Directions to Success™. As a Master Facilitator, Sheila brings passion, dedication and enthusiasm to her audiences, as she coaches individuals and teams to embrace and manage change.

With more than 20 years experience in Human Services and Education, Sheila is able to share her skills, talents and services with individuals who are dissatisfied with dependent lifestyles that limit their ability to become self-sufficient. Her natural ability to communicate to those trapped in the cycle of dependency is her greatest asset – and theirs.

Sheila's professional experience includes teaching at the elementary school level, employment and training counseling, management, and conducting diverse human resource development projects. She has a special interest in facilitating self-determination, self-reliance and self-respect.

Sheila and her husband make their home in Georgia.
